DPAS working in partnership

As a leading business in UK dentistry, DPAS are conscious of the difficulties being faced by some practitioners during the economic downturn. During the recent “Partners in Dentistry Conference” held at their offices in Tisbury, Wiltshire, they brought together a variety of the industry’s opinion leaders and dental professionals to discuss the potential impact of the current climate on the dental profession as a whole.

Your practice. Your patients. Your choice.

DPAS CEO Richard George was delighted with the success of what was a well attended and worthwhile event – “It is fantastic for us to be associated with so many forward-thinking professionals who are passionate about delivering an excellent service to dentists.”

The day, which included a highly thought provoking and candid presentation by Quentin Skinner, Chairman of DPAS, was concluded by a fascinating and lively Open Forum in which all present had the opportunity to exchange their views and thoughts on the current state of UK dentistry and what implications the wider economic and political situation might have for the profession in the future.

DPAS aim to make their Partners in Dentistry Conference a regular feature of the yearly calendar and will be contacting attendees to discuss future plans for further networking events.
